Special Session of Legislature Voted at States Meeting

Several Suggested Levy Sources Recommended at Arkansas Meet

TAX PUBLIC UTILITIES Abolition of Many of the State Schools Is Urged

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—A special legislative session to enact measures taxing several suggested revenue sources was recommended by a vote of 52 to 19 county delegations in a meeting here Friday afternoon of more than 500 school directors who gave their views on the school financial question to the legislative commission on school problems.

A tax on public utilities, lowering of exemptions on incomes and raising the rates in the higher brackets, were favored by the delegates, who voted as county delegations.

As the last act of the session, a resolution was adopted overwhelmingly requesting the legislature, at called into special session, to abolish all state supported institutions of higher learning except the university of Arkansas, State Teachers' College at Conway, and four original agricultural colleges, and the branch A. and M. school for negroes at Pine Bluff.

In event no special session is called, the resolution provided that measures to initiate such a bill be taken.

Beebe School Defended

Through the resolutions the delegates took up a gauntlet thrown down by Senator W. H. Abington of Beebe, who a few minutes before had vigorously defended the junior agricultural schools, one of which he is credited with having established—the Junior Agricultural College at Beebe.

Senator Abington asserted that the school directors wanted "to start a

Record Weight Achieved by Year-Old Bull Calf

SHOALS, Ind.—(AP)—Equity Idolmere, sleek-coated and aristocratic-looking, is the world's champion baby weight-gainer.

This year-old Angus bull calf weighs 1,249, an unprecedented addition of 40 pounds for that class of cattle. Purdue university recorded after checking the data of Rollie Hendrix, his owner.

The Hendrix farm is made up of 495 acres of Martin county hills, only 105 of which are tillable. The young bull, however, was not permitted to roam the 300 acres of pasture and woodland. When two and one-half months old he was put in a box stall and there remained while other calves were permitted to explore the hills and valleys.

Great Parade of Dogs and Dolls

135 Register In Star Party Friday

14 Prize-Winners Chosen After Two Hours in Crowded Streets

The youngsters came to town Friday—and nearly wrecked The Star office.

Such a crowd you never did see, and everybody in the newspaper plant got a sprained wrist writing down the names of the entrants in the Dog and Doll Parade.

There were 135 registered, and about three times that many parents and youngsters in front of The Star at the parade hour, 4 o'clock.

Main street was closed to traffic for more than two hours, and throngs swept along the sidewalks of the business section as the parade steamed up and moved on its way.

Big dogs, little dogs, nice dogs, funny dogs, dolls, little and big—all joined the parade of the tiny tots Friday afternoon.

Between arrangements for judges, registering all the youngsters and getting the parade under way, The Star's office force were kept busy unwinding their legs from dog-leashes, and putting a silencer on excited hounds that persisted in barking.

Not a Flea in a Carload

Humor and pathos ran through the day's events. There was a touch of tender care in the sight of half a hundred boys' pets, each dog freshly washed and combed, with not a flea on the premises. And there was the little girl who called up The Star to register a big because the dog prizes were awarded to boys, and the dog prizes to girls. She wanted to bring a dog, because "then the boys can bring a doll if they want to." But as The Star pointed out, boys may play with dolls, perhaps, but it would take the National Guard to force a boy to carry a doll in a public parade. So we told the lady she would have to lay off the dogs—they all belonged to the boys.

And then, there was the story of the boy who didn't get to march in the parade at all. His father told us about that case. It was quite tragic. This boy had a female hound. He spent most of Friday morning making her beautiful. Then about an hour before parade-time she slipped her leash and ran off to splash in a mud-puddle. No dog, no parade—nothing but a dirty, ungrateful tramp, as the

Radio to Run Auto at 4 P. M. Sunday

Gloria Hall Will Control Car at Fair Park From Airplane

Miss Gloria Hall, Los Angeles woman flyer, will demonstrate at Fair Park at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon the radio control of a automobile driven from an airplane 1,000 feet above it.

Miss Hall will attain sufficient altitude and establish radio contact with the automobile, parked on the race-track at the Fair Grounds. The car will then be started, driven about the Fair Grounds, steered and operated entirely by the radio impulses from the plane far above.

If a pedestrian crosses in front of the car, the horn will sound off, exactly as if the driver were in the front seat, instead of 1,000 above it.

Miss Hall is preparing here under the auspices of the Leslie Huddleston post of the American Legion. There will be a gate charge at the Fair Ground, the proceeds to go to a fund for the expense of sending the Little Rock band to the national Legion convention this fall as an Arkansas advertising feature.

Jury Frees George H. Bell After Deliberating Only Ten Minutes

ASHDOWN.—George H. Bell, Nashville banker, charged with receiving deposits in the Planters Bank & Trust company of Nashville while knowing the bank to be insolvent, was found not guilty by a jury at 11 Friday night. The jury required only 10 minutes to reach a decision.

The defense rested at 4:45 Friday afternoon, and Bell took the stand. Most of the witnesses for the defense were bank directors. Among the 15 defense witnesses were Guy Phillips, vice president of the Mississippi Valley Trust Company of St. Louis and Stuart Wilson, president of the State National bank of Texarkana, who testified that the Nashville bank was not insolvent.

Morehead Wright of the Union Trust Company, Little Rock, testified that his institution had never declined any requisitions from the Nashville bank and that he had conferred with Bell in Little Rock October 23, 1930, and had approved of the correspondent bank's condition.

Bell testified he had made every effort to keep the bank open. He said the bank held between $18,000 and $19,000 worth of his notes, secured by $97,000 stock in the Bert Johnson orchard, and that his home was mortgaged. Seven state witnesses testified concerning the value of the land held as security.

The telephone operator at Placerville said: "We can hold it for a while anyway."

New High School Closed To Public

Crowds Must Stay Away Until Structure Is Formally Accepted

As the new Hope high school building approaches completion the increasing crowds who go out to inspect the structure as Sixteenth and Main streets are hindering the workmen, Contractor J. M. O'Neal reported Saturday to Miss Beryl Henry, city superintendent, and the Board of Education.

Mr. O'Neal has closed the grounds and the building to the public until the completed plant is turned over to the school authorities, he announced Saturday.

The building is finished on the exterior, and only a few touches are being added, in the way of flooring, tile-work and fixtures. Visitors have proved especially troublesome on account of scarring up new floors before the building has been officially finished, the contractor said.

Formal dedication of the high school has been tentatively set for September 10. It will be the finest building of its kind in this section of Arkansas, with gymnasium, science laboratories, and radio equipment in every classroom. The athletic field will be on the same property, eliminating the long trip from locker-rooms to stadium.

Britain Plots Campaign Against Cattle Parasite

LONDON.—(AP)—A kingdom-wide campaign against the warble fly, which costs cattle farmers $5,000,000 yearly, is being mapped in England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland.

The fly is a parasite living on the bodies of cattle. Its grubs bore into the hide, making holes that spoil it for training. As many as 1,000 holes have been found in one hide.

Now, however, simple and inexpensive dip, based on extract of derris, an eastern plant, has been found effective against it.

Youth Crushed By Truck At Stamps

Marion Farley Injured Fatally When Machine Plunges From Bridge

STAMPS.—Marion Farley, aged 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Farley and a student in Stamps High School, was injured fatally late Thursday when a truck in which he was riding crashed through the railing of a bridge on Highway No. 2, half a mile east of here, and landed in the bed of a small creek. Farley was caught beneath the truck. His ribs were torn loose and his chest crushed. He died in a hospital here at 10 Thursday night.

The truck, owned by Crow's laundry of Texarkana, was driven by Cecil Braswell. Farley was returning with Braswell from Magnolia. The latter suffered a severe cut on the right cheek and was taken to Texarkana for medical attention.

The accident is said to have resulted when W. H. Williams of Little Rock, who was an insurance agent, attempted to pass the laundry truck on a narrow bridge. The rear bumper of Williams' car is said to have caught the front bumper of the truck as both vehicles approached the bridge, causing the truck to swerve and strike the bridge rail. Williams was not injured.

Funeral services for young Farley were held Friday afternoon by the Rev. Rogers, pastor of the Methodist church. Besides his parents, Farley is survived by one brother and three sisters.

Audit Contract Is Between 3 Firms

Commission Whittles List Down—Chancellor Futrell Quits

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Highway Audit Commission Saturday eliminated all but three bids for the contract to audit the State Highway Department.

The audit commission has these firms to report back to the commission's next meeting, Friday, August 28, when a contract will probably be awarded.

A total of 17 bids were received.

The resignation of Chancellor J. M. Futrell, of Fayetteville, as chairman of the Highway Audit Commission featured its session Friday. He was succeeded as chairman by Circuit Judge W. J. Waggoner, of Lonoke.

The new member of the commission, the vacancy left by Chancellor Futrell, was the result of his belief that the highway audit act was defective and would allow of a complete and thorough audit. Other members of the commission inclined to the view that a comprehensive audit could be made, but no formal opinion from Attorney General Norwood.

The Hitch Hiker!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—The most obvious practical effect of the Wickersham report on deportations is to make it harder for Secretary of Labor William C. Doak to brand all critics of his immigration tactics as bolsheviks, anarchists and underminers of our glorious institutions.

The members of the Wickersham commission are not bolsheviks, anarchists or underminers, and yet they adopt conclusions that are often treated unconstitutionally, tyrannically and oppressively.

Thus the report becomes a sort of a text book for those who are continually protesting some of the allegedly high-handed and hard-hearted acts of the immigration service. It says that the abuses are chargeable to the system rather than to the Department of Labor and that inspectors shouldn't be expected to act satisfactorily as investigators, prosecutors and judges at the same time.

But it says enough other things so that Doak is in something of an indignant rage. Doak has been staging a well-ballyhooed deportation drive and has maintained that only dangerous characters objected to any aspects of it. Both the commission and Reuben Oppenheimer, who wrote the conclusions it adopted, urged strict enforcement of deportation laws, but they also found some defects in the picture.

EXTRAORDINARY powers of the immigration officers are clearly revealed. An inspector apparently can grab anyone and rush him off as a suspected alien. He can jail suspects without a warrant, searching them and their effects. He can make wholesale raids anywhere, holding a thousand persons at a time until they prove their right to freedom. He can deny prisoners counsel at their preliminary examinations. Comparing methods of cross-examination with the inquisition, Oppenheimer says: "It is doubtful if anywhere in the entire system of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence are government officials given similar unfettered rights of private inquiry, or is the exercise of governmental power more often characterized by violations of fairness and decency."

Anonymous letters are one of the chief sources of information relied upon to apprehend aliens. They are often written by personal enemies and sometimes even by members of the suspect's own family who want to get rid of him. Many aliens, chagrined at their own apprehension, give the names of others who are subject to deportation, either when arrested or by writing back from the country where they are deported. Some immigration inspectors also use stool pigeons at strategic points, such as large factories employing many aliens.

INSPECTORS often ask many questions about the suspects' sex history when such matters have nothing to do with the case. In a large proportion of cases the nature and persistence of the questions can only be described as inquisitorial and "in such cases the only limits of the scope of the examination are the limits of the examiner's curiosity."

Aliens frequently marry Americans. About nine per cent of the aliens deported in cases studied by Oppenheimer had an American husband, wife or child, so it is estimated that in 1930 more than 1500 Americans were affected by deportations. Records don't show in how many cases the alien couldn't take his or her family along, but they frequently protested that it was impossible. Oppenheimer says: "What happens to the families left in America when the heads are deported does not appear."

Although Doak hates communists with patriotic fervor, Russia is the one country to which we can't deport people unless she is willing to accept them. There are hundreds of Russians against whom deportation warrants have been issued but who remain in the country as long as we have no diplomatic relations with the Soviet government. They are out on bail, detained at public expense or at large. Only in rare cases does Russia consent to receive a deportee.

News Of Other Days

From the Columns of The Star of Hope

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Arthur Washington, of Ches-shire, England, is in the city visiting his cousin, J. A. Sullivan. Mr. Washington is a printer and has only been in the United States a few days, having left his home some three weeks ago.

Mr. A. P. Dyke spent last week in northern Indiana and Ohio in the interest of securing various hardwood factories, fruit and truck growers, and oil and gas operators for Hope. His endeavors are to secure woodworking plants which will use timber that will not conflict with plants already here. Prospects appear good for two or three hardwood factories this fall and winter.

TEN YEARS AGO

The progressive citizens of Prescott, through their Chamber of Commerce, are busy with the matter of building the Nevada county link of the Bankhead highway.

Lieut. T. R. Wilson, of the United States Army, formerly a citizen of Hope, and whose home is at Ola, Ark., is a visitor here today.

Dr. Finley F. Gibson, who was reared in Hope, and who is now one of the leading preachers of the Baptist denomination in the South, being pastor of one of the largest churches in Kentucky, is conducting a revival meeting at Malvern.

BARBS

A truck captured with a load of alcohol in Kansas recently carried a sign, "Grandma's Breakfast Food." Why, Grandma?

George M. Cohan has written a song about George Washington. Well, that's about the only thing that hadn't been written about him.

It has just been declared illegal to ride a bicycle while intoxicated in the city of St. Paul. The city should now pass a blanket ordinance making any form of suicide a felony.

"Wine bricks" were offered for sale in New York City the other day. Probably for jelly-making.

A reader reports he has a dime dated 1839 and wants to know what it is worth. Just as much as any other dime is worth these days, about $2.

Cuban Leader Still in Move Against Rebels

HAVANA.—(AP)—President Gerardo Machado, remaining in Santa Clara to complete subjugation of the revolt against his administration, informed his colleagues here Wednesday that he was still busy directing the campaign against the rebels in the inland provinces.

Oil Firm Merger With Pipe Line Firm Hinted

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—The Tulsa World says it has learned announcement will be made soon of the merger of the Prairie Oil and Gas company and the Prairie Pipe Line company with the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation.

The World says another large independent oil company also may be forming a billion dollar concern that will be known as the Commonwealth Petroleum Corporation.

High officials of the Sinclair and Prairie companies are in New York completing final arrangements for the consolidation, the World says.

The other concern mentioned in

Farmers Realized Profit From Oats

All the Small Grain Made Good Production Last Spring

Farmers in Arkansas who last fall sowed oats, other fall grains or crops for winter cover crops, pasture and spring feed gained considerable advantage from this. If the practice is persisted in, the advantage will be maintained. It is apparent that there will be a need for holding down the cost of production of cotton again next year. The growing of fall grain crops aids in doing this by furnishing feed for work animals in the summer when there is a need for saving in purchasing feed, states T. Roy Reid, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture Extension Service.

There are no indications which seem to justify an increase in the acreage of cotton next year, so the land utilized for this purpose may help to hold down the cotton acreage and thus result in an indirect advantage in this way.

The work of the harvest will be heavy this year if present favorable conditions continue. There will not be the urgent need for pasture and grain crops there was last year. These immediate reasons may tend to influence some to delay or postpone the planting of these fall crops. But there is a need for these in the system of farming. A large acreage with excellent yields was produced last year. It is to the advantage of all farmers who are interested in permanent progress rather than meeting emergency conditions to seed a considerable acreage to these crops again this fall.

Blight-Resistant Beans Sought to Cut Crop Loss

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Apparently the best control for bacterial blight which, second to anthracnose, is the worst bean disease, is the development of blight-resistant varieties, says Dr. W. J. Zaunmeyer, assistant government pathologist.

The annual loss from the disease approximates a quarter million bushels. Losses in bad seasons have run as high as 75 per cent of the crop.

In isolated instances and in particularly bad years complete destruction of a field is not uncommon.

Rome is bothered with grasshoppers, too, we hear. Mussolini should speak to them.

At Meeting of Democratic Leaders

Governor and former governor of New York, proposed presidential candidate and one-time nominee, Franklin D. Roosevelt, left, and Alfred E. Smith met and talked the other day at a gathering of Democratic leaders at a long island summer resort. There was an informal discussion, at the meeting, of the Anti-Saloon League's declaration of war against Governor Roosevelt's candidacy; but when this picture was taken Smith and the Governor were genially joshing each other about their fishing skill.

Two More Are Indicted in Coal Field Disorders

HARLAN, Ky.—(AP)—Three more men were indicted here Friday on charges of murder growing out of the mine labor clash at Evans last May in which four were killed.

The grand jury also indicted seven on charges of criminal syndicalism and nine on charges of banding and confederating in connection with the disorders in the coal fields.

American Money Looks Good to Antipodeans

CANBERRA.—(AP)—There is a growing feeling in influential circles that Australia should seek loans from the United States instead of remaining under the financial dominations of British interests.

Newspapers display reports that there is ample money in America for sound investment.

Two Killed as Truck Leaves Road at Bridge

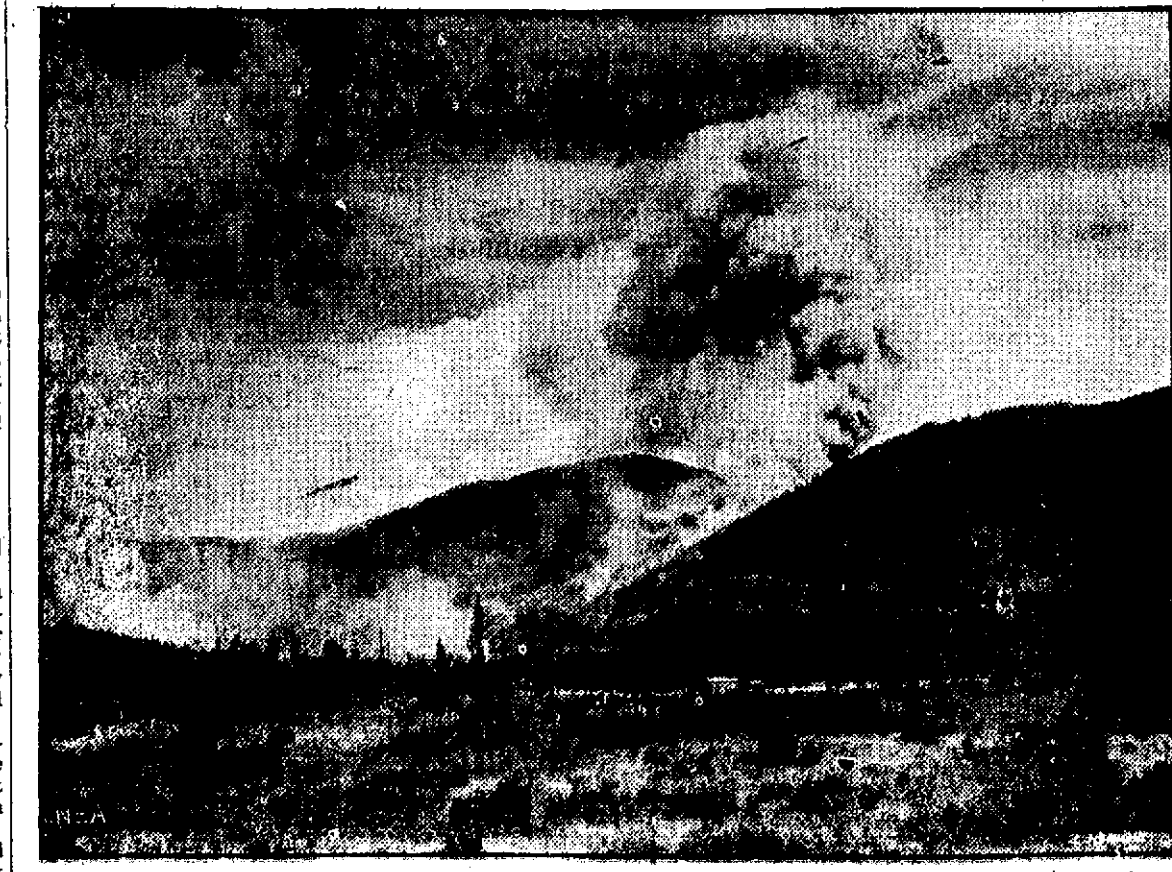

ROLLA, Mo.—(AP)—Howard Bone and Carl Plummer, of Springfield, Ark., were killed and a third man critically injured early Friday when a large truck plunged off the highway at a bridge over the railroad tracks at Arlington, near here.

Ex-President Among Captured Cuban Rebels

Mountain of Smoke Fills Sky in Raging Forest Fire

Belching forth a great mountain of smoke like an active volcano, the uncontrolled forest fire sweeping through forests in Montana, Washington and Idaho is shown in this remarkable picture. Fifteen million acres of forests have been closed and a small army of men is fighting the flames on all sides. This picture was taken in Montana.

"And Then—?"

A SALESMAN sent into the tropics to sell agricultural machinery, came back with a story which illustrates a number of things.

He found the natives contentedly sitting around while abundant Nature grew all their food with the slightest possible effort on their part.

"If you had a plow and a harrow you could grow more food," said the salesman.

"And then—?" asked the native.

"Then you could get money for it and buy more land."

"And then—?"

"Why, then you could buy more machinery and grow still more food and get more money."

"And then—?"

"Why, then, after a while you would have so much money you wouldn't need to work."</

The Bread Life

And shamed he sat.
The leanness of his hands locked close about
A bread-line tin. A scoop of beans, some fat.
The humdrum sputtering of dishing out.
What voice a draw? What odds?
The roadway scans a distance far and wide.
No product this of slum, of swaying rods;
But tiller of the field and country side.
What . . . and the blossoms break in avalanche of peach and cherry foam.
Unharvested the fruit. A scarlet lake,
Fast rolled to the depth of mottled loom.
Eyes scarce looked up. One failure

Everybody had a good time, however, once the crowd had gathered, and with folks in the street and all along the sidewalks, it looked like a community circus. It was quite the biggest public event in Hope this summer—and The Star wishes to thank all the parents and youngsters; Chief of Police Stuart; the judges, Miss Beryl Henry, Charles Harrell and Roy Anderson; and everyone else who contributed to the success of the party.

The entrants registered for the parade were numbered, and all the judg-lutely fair. When the judges had selected the winning numbers, The Star verified them from its registration sheets, and declared the prize-win-

IDABEL, Okla.—The first bale of Farm Board Encouraged

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The New Orleans conference sponsored by Governor Long of Louisiana drew guarded comments from Chairman Stone and members of the Federal Farm Board Friday night.

But there was a note of optimism in the view expressed by Chairman Stone. The Farm Board has already agreed to advance within one cent a pound of the market price, on all cotton offered by farmers to the co-operative associations this year.

The board recently proposed plowing under every third row of the standing crop. Seven of the 14 governors to whom it was suggested rejected the plan. Many counter proposals have been submitted. These are being analyzed by board experts to determine if a new workable plan might be evolved.

"The one thing we are trying to do," Stone said, "is to bring forcefully before the South the absolute need for cutting down on production until the existing surpluses have been done away with. That was what we had in mind when we advanced our plan. It has had the good result of making people of the South consider the problem seriously. Whether we will have a new plan remains to be seen."

200 Million on Hand
The purchase of 8,000,000 bales of cotton at eight cents a pound would entail an expenditure of $320,000,000.
The board was given $500,000,000 by Congress. Approximately $105,000,000 already has been invested in the purchase of 1,300,000 bales in price stabilization operations. Considerably more than that is invested in wheat purchases and other millions have been loaned to co-operatives. On July 1 the board had approximately $200-000,000 in its treasury.

This will be heavily drawn on, however, in making advances to co-operative members in handling this year's cotton crop. The advance at present price levels will be one cent per pound less than the price paid at delivery points.

they favored a special legislative ses-favored.

Nine Sources
The nine suggested sources of revenué were:
1. Amend the income tax law so as to lower the exemptions and increase the rates in the higher brackets.
2. Extend the tobacco tax to all forms of tobacco.
3. Change the severance tax from an ad valorem to a quantity basis.
4. A privilege tax on chain stores.
5. A tax on soft drinks.
6. A tax on cosmetics.
7. A franchise tax on use of water power resources by utilities.

from my hand. He ran into the street. I went after him but before I could reach him the dog was on the other side. I saw a young woman pick him up, get into a cab and disappear. When I called to her she took no notice. The young woman here he started gravely at the girl. "Was about your size, I should say. She had blue eyes. Beautiful eyes and blond hair."

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" Norma interrupted him. "I'm quite sure the puppy I found can't be yours. You see this dog didn't have a leash or even a collar."

"It is possible that he might have lost them. At least, I would certainly like to see the dog you have here. As I said before I prize my pet highly and I'm offering a reward."

"How am I to know, sir," the girl spoke demurely, "that this story of yours is true? If I should let you see the dog, it would be very easy for you to claim him. How can I be sure that you are not an impostor?"

TRAVERS knew she was laughing at him. Well, that was all right. Anything was all right so long as she wasn't angry.

Taking a leather case from his pocket he drew out a card, bowed formally and extended it toward the girl.

"Madam, my card!"

So his name was really Travers. Norma read the neat engraving "Mark Finley Travers." It was not a business card. The lettering was bold, masculine, aristocratic-looking. Or perhaps it was the name itself that seemed aristocratic.

"May I see the dog now?"

Should she go on with his nonsense? It was ridiculous to pretend she had never seen the young man before, that she believed his story about losing a dog or that he cared anything about seeing the puppy.

really a dog I lost, though. It was a girl. She wouldn't tell me her name or her telephone number but she did say something about placing a want ad to find the owner of a stray pup. I've read every edition of every newspaper published in this town for the last two days! I've tried to think up a hundred different schemes to find you and none of them were practical."

Now was certainly the time to end this interview. It was a mistake to have brought the young man downstairs, Norma realized.

She turned toward the youth. "Well, Mr. Travers," she said, "since this isn't your dog we may as well go back upstairs. I'll take Wower along with me to get his bread and milk. There's a woman coming after while who thinks he may be the dog she has lost. Let's hope the real owner will be here before long."

"Oh, but wait a minute," Travers eyes (brown they were and very dark) pleaded for him. They pleaded to no avail. Norma had turned her back and did not even catch the glance. Perhaps if she had seen it she might not have been so adamant.

By the time they emerged to the first floor hallway he was ready with a new appeal.

"Listen, Miss Kent," he began, "I hope I haven't offended you by coming out here on—well, sort of false pretenses. I thought maybe I could persuade you to come for a drive. It's a fine evening and my car's outside. We could go somewhere and dance. Or if you'd rather see a play we can take a run down town and pick up tickets."

This was more familiar and easier to handle. Norma said clearly, "I'm sorry, Mr. Travers, but it's quite out of the question. Besides I must stay here this evening to answer inquiries about the dog."

"How about tomorrow then?"

"I couldn't possibly manage it tomorrow."

"How about the next night? Or the one after that?"

Norma shook her head. "I didn't put that want ad in the paper," she said firmly, "to increase my social engagements. I—I think I'd better say good evening now."

MARK TRAVERS was annoyed and his face showed it. On the other hand such refusal, everything about this young woman, made him want more and more to know her.

Lowering the pitch of his voice, fixing his eyes on Norma, he said softly, "Oh, but you will change your mind and just this one time? You will do this for me, won't you, Beautiful?"

It was the voice, the tone, the very speech that had won a dozen romantic encounters.

Seldom, therefore, has there been a more amazed, more disconcerted young man than this self-same Mark Travers when, five minutes later, he found himself on the opposite side of a closed door with only the dusky September sky to share his reflections.

Travers moved slowly toward the roadster at the curb. It was a handsome roadster, heavily built but graceful. He climbed into the seat and with a low throb the car shot forward.

Dusk had descended completely when Travers brought the car to an abrupt halt before a corner to bistro. He left the wheel, entered the store and made his way to a public telephone booth. There he dropped a nickel into the slot and began to dial rapidly.

(To Be Continued)

As Norma hesitated she caught his gaze directly. The girl flushed. In a voice that was not quite natural she said suddenly, "I'll show him to you. We'll have to go down to the basement."

His steady trend followed her light footsteps on the rickety stairs. Norma snapped the switch and pale electricity illuminated the base ment.

"It's back here," she said over her shoulder. They went through an open doorway into the rear of the basement. This was the store room and here, on his folded blanket, the pup sat erect, blinked at them.

Evidently the sound of their footsteps had awakened him. For an instant the puppy stared, then bounded forward with a yelp.

"Mrr-ph! Mrr-ph!" he barked joyously. "MRR-PHI!"

Norma stooped and picked him up. She held him in her arms, rubbing the velvet head. "Why, he looks a lot better!" Travers exclaimed, forgetting his pose. "Been feeding him, haven't you?"

"Bread and milk," Norma informed him. "The night I brought him here he really was nearly starved. You should have seen him go after a bowl of milk!" She gave her attention to the pup, earnestly, "you know I think it's swell of you to take care of this little mutt the way you have. Feed him and look out for him, actually spend money to try to find the people he belongs to."

"Why, Mr. Travers!" The girl touched the puppy's warm fur to her cheek. She was smiling. "I thought you came here to inquire about the dog you've lost! You haven't said a word about whether or not this puppy is yours. Aren't you—forgetting yourself?"

TRAVERS grinned. "Suppose I am," he admitted. "It wasn't

Ozark Region Praised By All Vacationists

Gateway Cities to the Famous Mountains Urged to Attract More People to Section for Vacations and Touring Trips

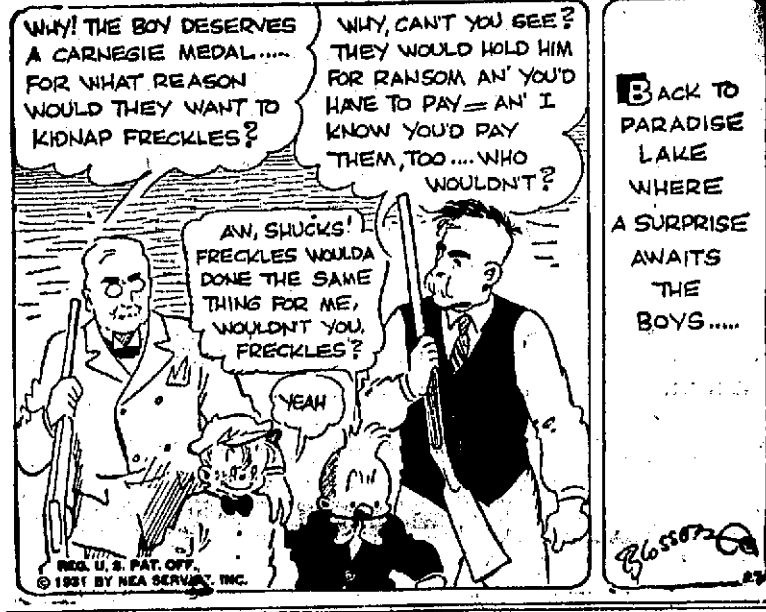

ST. LOUIS.—(P)—The proper advancement of the use of the Ozarks region by vacationists will realize a greater gain in money value than the exploitation of a similar area for either agriculture or industry.

Hugh Stephens of Jefferson City, president of the recently organized Ozarka, Inc., said in a recent address to the board of governors here.

Stressing importance of united action of sections interested, Stephens said:

"If by united action the people of the various sections of the Ozarks region and its gateway cities can properly advance the use of that territory by the great potential army of vacationists, they will realize a gain greater in money value than the exploitation of a similar area for either

Ruth Gets 600th Homer on Friday

Another Mile-Stone Passed in Career of Famous Slugger

Babe Ruth got his 35th home run Friday—the 600th of his career—and the New York Yankees, playing at St. Louis, walloped the Browns 11 to 7.

Lou Gehrig, Yankee baseman, hit his 34th homer. Ruth was put out of the game in the seventh inning for kicking on an umpire's decision. The Babe claimed that a home run hit by Kress of St. Louis struck the bleacher wall and bounced into the stands—but the umpire couldn't see the argument.

Fight to Save Idaho Towns in Timber Fire

BOISE, Idaho.—(P)—A force of 200 fire fighters held a forest fire at bay as it surged within half a mile of the town of Placerville, Idaho, Friday.

The fire, with the ghost mining towns of Quartzburg and Granite, already in its maw, was held in check during the night but the fighters expressed concern over what the day would bring in winds and high temperatures to spur on the flames.

The telephone operator at Placerville said: "We can hold it for a while anyway."

Pupils of the grammar schools, devoted to academic subjects are 1½ inches taller and weigh 3.3 pounds more on an average than those of the same age who attend the national or vocational schools.

Lines Written in Righteous Indignation
THE Indians are on the warpath again, in Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and way points. The object is the scalps of Donie Bush, Roger Peckinpaugh, Jewel Ens and other managers whose teams this year have fallen upon evil days.

Yet I believe that any of these gentlemen could manage a ball club like, let us say, the Athletics!

It seems to me that the fact is too often overlooked that you can't win a pennant with your pitchers in hospitals and your clean-up hitters on the bench.

And I wonder how well Connie Mack or Gabby Street would fare as managers of the White Sox, Indians or Pirates.

worries. He didn't know the half of it. There proved to be a tremendous gap at third and short, and Second Baseman Johnny Ho-dapp not only was out a great part of the time with injuries but forgot what his bat was for. His left-handers acquired the nauseating habit of throwing home-run balls, and he had to peddle both, which left him in mid-season with-

Donie in the Dumps
PARTICULARLY sad is the case of Donie Bush. The White Sox team, we read in some of the Chicago newspapers, is woefully weak in every department. Yet, what bright promises Spring held forth.

How could it be known then that Carl Reynolds, one of the best players in the league, would be out of the game half the time? Could it be forecast that Smead Jolley, who drove in 110 runs last season, would be injured? Or, that Hal McKinn would suffer a shoulder injury? Or, that Pitcher Moore would come down with a contagious disease? How could it be known that Ted Lyons, one of the league's best pitchers in 1930, would be practically useless in 1931?

It is being said that Charlie Comiskey wears ash hooks on his pockets and that he wouldn't take 35 cents out of his moth-proof money bags if he could buy Al Simmons with it. Comiskey, however, is the same man, I believe, who paid $100,000 for Willie Kamm and more than that for Bill Cissell in the hope of building his team into a pennant contender.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
BESIDES the race track at Saratoga, there are delightful spring waters . . . but most of the talent can get clean enough at the track . . . Saratoga is sacred as one of the few remaining links between a generation of sportsmen that either has gone or is on the way out, and the present . . . the track was conceived and built in 1882 by John Morrissey, prizefighter and congressman . . . there have been some great races there . . . and some great upsets . . . such as the victory of Jim Dandy, at 100 to 1, over Gallant Fox last summer.

out a left-hander of any kind.

Jewel Ens was confronted with an injury problem second only to that of Donie Bush. Besides, it was discovered that Barney Dreyfuss had made some trades that were not very hot. Ens had to try to win ball games with an infield second to none.
